HALL PACKED FOR VALENTINE DANCE TUESDAY

Artistic Decorations of Hall Add
Gaiety and Spirit to Event—
Novelty Introduced Lenos to Effect—Orchestra Furnishes
Excellent Music—Many Outsiders Present.

Red's hall never presented a gay and more brilliant appearance than it did last Tuesday evening on the occasion of the Valentine dance given under the auspices of the W. A. of St. Ambrose church. On entering the hall one almost immediately caught the Valentine spirit, for displays on all sides were Valentine emblems and colors. The windows were tastefully decorated with red and white and artistically made for the occasion and streamers were hung from each corner of the room covering in the center. A variety of valentine designs were hung to these streamers and liberally distributed about the walls. The same effect was carried out from room to room, the result being a most pleasing which was devoted to card playing.

With these strikingly attractive decorations first presented to the eye and with the brilliant spirit permeating the atmosphere, the way was well paved for the jolly evening. Full of merriment and good nature, it was no wonder, therefore, that from the opening waltz, the "Home, Sweet Home," the immense crowd of guests in the best of humor and all were able to say at the finish that it was one of the most successful and enjoyable events of the season.

Running concurrently with the dance in the ball room was the Wist dance to the adjoining room. Here also the same spirit prevailed and twelve tables were kept in excellent condition until midnight hour. The tables were crowded up to the ceiling and the prize was won by Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Keller.

Just before the prize was won a surprise was sprung. When all the ladies dancers were in the centre of the hall in a circle of dancers, members of the committee distributed valentines to all the dancers. These had been of all colors, shapes, sizes and designs and as they were being distributed, the dancing of the evening, they had a most delightful effect when all the dancers were on the floor. When lunch time came the problem of serving such a large number was solved by the use of the adjoining room where the card tables were used for this purpose. In this way this very important part of the evening's program was most successfully and satisfactorily carried out.

The orchestra for this occasion consisted of six pieces and the music they provided was of such an excellent quality that almost all the dancers stayed till the finish and were loath to leave even then. The committee in charge with us to extend their thanks to the orchestra for their valuable service, and more especially to Messrs. Smart and Hinch, of Medicine Hat, who volunteered their services for the occasion. The thanks of the committee is also extended to all who contributed in any way to the great success of the evening.

Among those present was a large representation from Medicine Hat, many of whom were lost in the strains of the great success of the evening. As a result of their venture the W. A. will have a tidy sum on the right side of the ledger. Some $100.00 was collected and $117.00 was taken in at the door.

We understand the members of the W. A. are already making plans to hold another dance along similar lines immediately after Lent. It will probably be on Wednesday, March 30th. Watch for later announcement.

ONTARIO MOVES FOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

A start has been made in the direction of establishing an eight-hour day in the province of Ontario. On Wednesday afternoon in the legislature, Sergeant-Major J. McNamee, Solicitor-General, introduced a bill which would set the maximum work hour day at eight. It provides for an eight-hour day, exclusive of the work hour for a woman. The bill is at least eight consecutive hours from the end of work on any one day to the beginning of work on the next day.

Well Known Redcliff Couple Wed Tuesday

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Ambrose church last Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Cockrell and Mr. Robert Messenger were united in the holy bonds of wedlock by the rector, Rev. C. C. Oms. The ceremony was a very simple one. The church was filled to capacity for the ceremony. Piously at four o'clock the bride and groom entered the church to the strains of "The Wedding March." The bride was accompanied by her brother, Mr. T. K. Osgood, and Mrs. D. McLaughlin. The groom was accompanied by his best man, Mr. D. McLaughlin, who was waiting when the bride party entered the church and the wedding ceremony was at once proceeded with. During the ceremony the choir rendered a full choral service.

On the termination of the program the chairman invited all to partake of friendly pleasures in the form of conversation. The girls' basement room was used for the purpose, and everyone entered into the spirit of the occasion wholeheartedly. At about 11 o'clock a dainty lunch was served and the strains of Aunt Lang Syne terminated a most enjoyable evening.

At last Thursday's meeting two more boys joined, making a total of 61 boys in the roll.

Three more boys passed (continued from last meeting). All the Scouts except the ones that have joined up in the last few weeks have passed their Scout tests.

Most of the evening was taken up in learning to box the compass. Boxing was one of the tests to be passed in the second class work now being taken up.

Lloyd George Pleads For Continued Unity

"We are engaged in a terrible task," said Lloyd George in a speech to the Welsh National Liberal Council, in which, in impassioned words, he declared the coalition government. He pleaded ardently for a continuation of political unity. "It is something more important than defending myself and my administration."

He asked whether anyone could afford to need for unity had passed into a crisis. "I wish to God everybody could, because it worries me it fills me sometimes with dread."

"If anyone could tell me that the danger is past, someone with authority should come with someone who would say to me, 'I should be so glad that I would sign my resignation tomorrow.'"

He said that the situation of the party was not as serious as it was made out to be. He said that the situation of the party was not as serious as it was made out to be.

Organize Under Soviet Plan

It has leaked out in Hamilton, Ont., that a radical body known as the International Solidarity and Workers' Association which aimed to establish a city of Soviet rule in Canada, has been organized and operating in that form for more than two years. An official who resigned from the body's executive recently declared that in two weeks the association had obtained a membership of 300. It also included a distribution of leaflets, unemployed, a job share for the workers of all profits made by employers, a demand that employers were compelled to provide work for all, and in case they refused, the factories be taken over and operated by the workers.

Bombing Days Saw Lives

Two days which were fest in the fire of the Forum Building at York and Gerrard streets, Toronto, by their incessant bombing probably saved the lives of countless people who were trapped on the upper floor of the building in question. Their continued yelping awakened the caretaker and attracted the attention of a constable on his beat just after midnight. Smoke was then detected rising from the building and the policeman and caretaker rushed the people on the third story of the building the flames had gained each balcony that some of them had to make their escape via the roof. Most of the inmates of the structure escaped in their night clothing. The Forum Building was at least forty years old and a fire trap. It was totally destroyed in fifty minutes. The lower floors were occupied by a business college and various stores and shops. The building was owned by the Canada Life Assurance Company. The total damage is estimated at $150,000.

Drillable Record Made

The dirigible R-34 which was damaged only last week while making a landing and after drifting out to sea, was finally maneuvered back to her base here, where she was hoisted back, being badly damaged by a strong wind. As it was almost out in two, it is announced that the dirigible was over and she will be dismantled. On her arrival at Hamilton, Friday night, efforts to launch the damaged dirigible were unsuccessful. She was released with great difficulty to a special anchorage, and was then captured in the wind.

GROCERS TAKING LESS PROFIT ON MANY LINES

Red Ropes Too People Make a Further Statement

Some of our friends among the grocers, in speaking of the letter to the press on grocery profits, have indicated that the letter was not intended to cause such an impression, as we know that most grocers sell well known brands of other goods at less profit than they could make on some brands equally well known, and for the same reason that they recommended Red Ropes, simply for their customers' best possible value.

In our letter we mentioned Red Ropes because we naturally saw first to our mind and because we knew that grocers were selling it at a low profit than they make on other lines. It is distributed by C. J. Limited, Winnipeg, Man.

"The Old, Old Story, as Was and Is"

They say times have changed and so they have, and the language of love has changed with them. But the old story is still the same. It is a universal tongue, yet even he, the clever little mouse, isn't letting the grass grow under his feet. He's keeping up-to-date, he's not going to be caught hopping oh, dear, no! The old time lover proposed in doubtful song thus: "Why can't thou love me no others do, look on me with unassuming eyes." Nowadays the lover says easily—over the lunch table something like this: "Come on and hang your lid on my hat rack." That's his way of proposing marriage. Oh, yes, times have changed, but where's the girl or the man who's not, but the clock back a couple of hundred years or so?

CHILDREN'S CORNER

The Children of Today are the Parents and Citizens of Tomorrow. In Years to Come the Destinies of Canada Will Be in Their Hands.

My dear Boys and Girls:

In my mail bag this week have been some very interesting letters from my nieces and nephews, and I am quite sure if you realized how much pleasure your letters give to me you would write often.

I have received several birthday dates which I am noting in my birthday book so that I may remember when to mail you the card which I have promised to send.

On this page I am printing a little sketch which Bella Josephine Graham, Trossachs, Sask., has written about her pet dog, in which I am quite sure you will be interested.

Susie Straub of Hodgeville, Sask., has also sent me a letter, written by Tennyson which I am printing.

Elva Mundell of Plunkett tells me about a most interesting black horse, but there, I will print her letter next week so that you may read it for yourselves. I was pleased too, to receive a letter from a new nephew named Henry Funk.

I suppose you are all thinking that spring will soon be here, and you not, planning the delightful things you will be able to do when the weather is nice enough for you to be out again. Indeed, we have had a wonderful winter and people have not been house-bound this year so much as usual. Even so, the spring time of the year is always welcome and Aunt Betty looks forward to it just as much as her nieces and nephews.

Write as soon and as often as you can to me telling me all the news about yourselves, especially the date of your birthdays, so that I may register them in that birthday book about which I have already told you.

Address your letter, Aunt Betty, 903 McCallum Hill Building, Regina, Sask.

Affectionately yours,

AUNT BETTY.

THE KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER

Then the old gentleman walked into the kitchen, and sat himself down on the stool. The job of his cap accommodated up the chimney, for it was a great deal too high for the roof.

"You'll soon dry there, sir," said Gluck, and sat down to turn the mutton.

But the old gentleman did not dry; he went on drip, drip, dripping among the cinders and the fire fazed and spluttered and began to look very black and uncomfortable; there never was such a cloak. It depended on the size of the card used.

"I beg your pardon sir," said Gluck, at length, after waiting the water spread in a long, quick, silvery stream over the floor for about a quarter of an hour. "Mayn't I take your cloak?"

"No thank you," said the old gentleman.

"Your exp. sir?"

"No, I am all right, thank you," said the old gentleman, rather gruffly.

"But sir, I'm very sorry," said Gluck, hesitatingly, "but really sir, you are putting the fire out."

"I'll take longer to do the mutton then," replied his visitor, dryly.

Gluck was much puzzled over the behaviour of his guest; it was such a strange mixture of coolness and humility. Gluck turned away at the string meditatively for another five minutes.

"That mutton looks very nice," said the old gentleman at length. "Can't you give me a little bit?"

"Impossible, sir," said Gluck. "I'm very hungry," continued the old gentleman. "I've had nothing to eat yesterday, nor today. They surely couldn't miss a bit from the knuckle."

He spoke in so melancholy a tone that it quite melted Gluck's heart. "They promised me, one slice today sir," said he. "I can give you that, but not one bit more."

"That's a good boy," said the old gentleman again.

some wool. You can make one as small as a waif or as big as a castle. It depends upon the size of the card used.

Suppose one just a nice size to handle is required. For that a round piece of cardboard four inches wide is needed. In the middle of the cardboard cut a hole six inches in diameter and should be about 1 1/2 inches across. The card should always be about three times as wide as the hole in the middle.

If the ball is to be all one color, unwind a good, long piece of wool. Then put one end of it through the hole in the middle of the card. Bring this end up to the card and hold it there with the finger. Now go on putting the wool through and through the hole and binding it round the card. It should not be pulled too tight, nor let too loose. Round and round the card the wool is twisted, each time being put through the hole in the center.

The hole in the middle will soon become full of wool, so that the end will not easily pass through. For the last time you may have to thread the wool through the hole with a needle.

When the hole in the middle is quite tight with the wool which has been put through it, take a pair of scissors and cut the wool all round the edge of the card. Each loop cut the card will be pulled to be cut. Then pull back the pieces, half to one side, and half to the other. Now tie the wool tightly in the middle with a piece of thin, strong string. Having done so, cut the card with the scissors from the edge down to the middle. It can then be pulled out.

There may be a few ragged edges of the wool to trim off with the scissors to make it look smooth and round, but that is all the ball is finished and ready for play.

If a ball of different colors is wanted, the card may be made of any color you like. All you need is to use wools of many colors. First, the card is finished with wool of one color. Then the card is finished with wool of another color. Then the card is finished with wool of a third color. Then the card is finished with wool of a fourth color. An eerie spirit of mystery brooded over the broad acres of Timothy Barclay's farm a spirit which used to whisper coldly to the stranger which drove through it on the broad highway. The whisper came from the breezes wafted by the trees in the thick wood on one side and from the solemnly grazing cattle which looked up soberly on the other. John Barclay's cattle ran into hundreds: he had the most up-to-date improvements in the neighborhood and was without doubt the wealthiest farmer in the district. A beautiful river ran right through his meadow land and all the conditions were ideal for prosperous farming.

But to Mary, the minister's wife, there was something tragic in the vastness of the great farm and in the unhappiness of the members of the capacious farmhouse, they each had a subdued air as though carrying a heavy load and in Mrs. Barclay's eyes there was a look of suffering, not to say terror.

"You do not look so very well, Mrs. Barclay," remarked Mary one day after divesting herself of her wraps and seating herself in one of the spotless kitchen chairs. Mary never stood on ceremony, even with the Barclay's, and even when her pleasant advances only met with a most discourteous grunt from Mr. Barclay himself.

"I've been telling John that must get away from this place," remarked the little woman, looking nervously over her shoulder a habit which Mary had observed was usual with all the Barclay womenfolk, "but he says it is out of the question. I feel as though I shall go mad if I live near that dreadful river any more. Which ever way I turn I can see it. It winds round and round, I think it has twisted itself round our lives and we cannot get away from it. It is ghastly!"

"But, Mrs. Barclay, it is so beautiful, the view and this dear old house, with the broad land all round it. I have often thought how many people would be so happy in your place, although I always felt you were not contented."

"Contented, my dear, none of the Barclays will ever be contented until this land goes to its rightful owner," and she looked over her shoulder again, "only then will the spirit which broods over the land and the river rest in peace."

"My dear Mrs. Barclay, what do you mean?" exclaimed Mary. The tired, pale, nervous little woman to whom wealth had not brought much of the ease of life drew a chair up close to her visitor.

"My dear," she said, "I am going to tell you the story of this sorrowful house. John has gone to town and Crystal won't close school for another two hours. I will relieve me to tell someone."

"Yes," assented Mary, feeling now that she was to hear the explanation of that shivery feeling of something sinister even in the warmest weather, which assailed her each time she crossed into the Barclay lands.

"My husband's grandfather," said Mrs. Barclay, her face whitening and her hands clutching nervously at her apron, "used to follow the mining camps from place to place and sell whisky and rum to the men. As you know, some of the miners are very wild, and at times will do anything for whisky. He made piles of money, but it was blood money and I am
